The Last Guardians

Chapter 1 by Erjsl

My name is Hector and I am a guardian. There aren't very many of us left; only a few hundred. Tonight I'm on guard with Talia. I glanced over at her a few minutes ago. She seems tense. I don't blame for that. Lately everyone that has been on guard has died. We still don't know what has been attacking us. The only thing we know we know is that we have never faced anything this deadly. Alistair, the head guardian says that if we try we can beat this, whatever this is. I don't think he believes that. A shadow covered the ground in front of me.

"ARGHHH!!!" I turned around as quickly as possible, but only to find Talia lying dead on the ground. You know I figured this would happen. Honestly, I was ready to give my life for Talia. After all, she was like my sister. I sensed footsteps behind me. As I reached for my dagger I turned around a stabbed in the lower right stomach area.

"Oh god, Trevor. No." I bent down on my knees. I killed my own brother. Trevor's skin started to peel off and he turned grey. "No. It can't be." I rushed back to the headquarters. If what I suspected was true we Trevor would still be alive and they could be anywhere. I reached the front doors and tried to push them open. I forgot about the verification method.

"Voice verification ready." The artificial intelligence said.

"Hector Will."

"Access granted." The door swung open and I continued to run straight to Alistair's office. I shook the handle on Alistair's door, but I knocked it down only to find Alistair and Dinah on his desk. They were doing, I put my hands in the air to block them.

"Well, that is something you definitely cannot unsee." I smirked. Alistar jumped up and buttoned his shirt.

"Hey! What's your problem? It was locked for a reason." He sat on the desk with his arm around Dinah.

"You know Markus is gonna have a fit." I pointed out.

"Well, Markus needs to know that-" Dinah took a breath and sang "I'm a big girl now." She kissed Alistar on the cheek and bid us farewell.

"Alistar, I know why we can't defeat the things that are attacking us." This got his attention.

"What? How?"

"Well, I was on guard and Talia and she was attacked. Next thing I knew there was something behind me and I turned around to stab it and it was Trevor."

"Oh no. You killed your own brother." Alistar said sadly.

"No, I didn't. You see Trevor started to deteriorate and then I realized it wasn't Trevor at all. It was one of those things. They can change shape." Alistar pointed at me.

"Hector, you're a genius." He got on his computer and did a quick search.

"No, no, not a genius. Well, ok, yeah, kinda." I smiled.

"Varabeasts."

"What?" I asked.

"The things attacking us are called varabeasts. You can break the names into two different parts; vara and beasts. Vara comes from vary or change and well beasts explains itself."
